Late Foreign Intelligence.

PHILADELPHIA, August 9.

Yesterday evening we boarded off Little-Tincum island, near the Lazaretto, the fast sailing brig Union, captain Thomas in forty three days from London. By this arrival we have received very copious and regular selected files of the various London prints, down to the 21st of June. Their leading contents are given in this day's Gazette. Altho' not of very great magnitude they may furnish much matter for political speculation.

LONDON, June 19.

Last night a very long debate took place on the Defence bill—and at five o'clock in the morning a division took place.

For the bill 265
Against it 223

Majority 42

Thus, after efforts almost unexampled the Minister only has a Majority of forty-two!

Mr. Pitt took occasion to state repeatedly, that he would not retire whatever might be the fate of the bill. The tone and manner of this bravado most evidently disgusted the sober and reflecting men on all sides—We think it not only disgusting but alarming, after the strange revolution with Europe has lately exhibited, and France seen consummated.

While Mr. Pitt's friends were in the lobby, he intimated that the third reading of the bill was intended for this day. He at the same time stated, that as the debate had been so long protracted, an early division might be expected. He cannot detain any longer the Generals, Admirals and Capt. that have been sent for.

An Overland dispatch has been received at the India House, with important intelligence of the farther operations of the Lajah Berar. The division of the army under General Stephenson in December last, besieged and took by storm the fort of Gyalgur. The loss on our side was considerable.

The numbers were:
European & Subsidiaries 5 killed 50 wounded.

Native 8 ditto—51 ditto

Total 13 110

Lieut. George Young, second Bat. 7th Regiment. Native infantry—died of his wounds.

Wounded—Lieut. Colonel Kenny, 1st Bat. 11th Reg. Native Infantry; Lieut. Pately, second Bat. 7th Reg. Native Infantry.

The number of guns taken amount to 52.

Accounts have likewise been received stating that peace was signed on the 30th December, on very advantageous terms. Among other acquisitions the company are to retain Baroach, in the maritime province of the Guzerat.

A French privateer which had made a great number of prizes, was captured by a man of war 74 guns, with another ship in company in the Bay of Bengal.

Mr. Drake and family have arrived at Harwich in the packet that brought over the last Hamburg mails.

Yesterday arrived a mail from New-York and Halifax, brought to Falmouth by the Duke of Cumberland Packet.

June 20.

The contending parties in the House of Commons displayed the utmost exertion of their powers on Monday night. The nation looked to the event as a kind of criterion by which they were to determine on the future government of the country: and according to the result of it, the public mind expected to attain some degree of certainty as to the party to whom the administration of public affairs at this important crisis, would be entrusted. The debate, as might be expected, branched off into a subject which, though not the direct object of consideration, naturally enough presented itself to the attention of the House. This was then late chage in his Majesty's Ministers. The subject was introduced in a manner not altogether expected, Mr. Canning assumed a degree of importance which required, as it received, the chastuing hand of Sheridan. It has been said that Mr. Pitt would, with all the influence of his authority, find it a matter of no small difficulty to keep some of his lesser colleagues from being indisposed to each other; and this appears from the small degree of consideration with which Lord Hawkebury is treated by Mr. Canning. Indeed, after the opinion given of the Noble Lord by that Gentleman, we cannot very well reconcile the probability of their remaining in office together. The Minister had considerable difficulties to encounter. It must, indeed, be acknowledged that the period when he reassumed the helm of power is pregnant with them. The Opposition possess a formidable character, both as to talents and number; nor is it to be supposed that their vigilance will be lulled asleep, or their activity suspended. We may, therefore, look forward to an occasional scene, at least, of Parliamentary contest.

Last night the Bill was read a third time and passed without a division.

It will be seen by our Parliamentary Report, that the new MINISTER's majority in the House of Commons is reduced to 28. Though actually beaten in the first division by six, it is the last division which is the proper subject of public interest; because, not having taken place till near eleven o'clock, the two sides mustered in great force, as the numbers demonstrate, there being 214 on the Ministerial side, and 186 on that of the Opposition. According to the allegations of the latter, the minister "can do no more;" whilst they assert that on Monday they will have a complete victory, Mr. Fox during the division, addressed the members in the lobby, exhorting their attendance on Monday, when, he said, a debate on the principle and all the parts of the Bill would take place, and a division upon either of two stages, which left them the discretion of a further effort, if the enemies of the obnoxious measure should not finally succeed on that day." This address of Mr. Fox was received with unusual acclamation, and an evident confidence of carrying their point. There are undoubtedly many circumstances in favour of this sanguine hope; for, besides that nothing falls so fast as a falling Minister, the names are mentioned of many of the oldest friends of Mr. Fox (such as Mr. Hussey, member for Salisbury, Mr. Curwen for Carlisle, Sir C. Bunbury, &c.) who have not yet voted, and it is said, are sure to attend on Monday. It is added, too, that some of those who supported Mr. Pitt in the previous stages (such as Sir William Dolben) are ultimately to vote against the bill. All votes of this description tell double. Upon the whole it is obvious that the Minister's situation is most perilous; for altho' he may gain some farther strength by Monday, it seems pretty evident that the Parliamentary torrent is against him; whilst at Court, after supporting the King's favourite minister, it cannot be supposed that his footing is firm. Clear as we are, and shall always be, of absolute party spirit, there are two observations which obviously present themselves to every reflecting mind—the first is, that a decisive majority of the representatives of England, have declared against a measure, which may nevertheless become the law of the land; the second is, that Mr. Pitt comes in, to carry on the Government, with a much smaller majority than that which suggested to Mr. Addington's constitutional sense of duty, to go out.

Private letters from Vienna, dated May 23, says:—"You may depend upon it as a fact, that all our troops, except those in Italy, have been ordered by our Sovereign to hold themselves ready to form three different grand encampments. The Emperor and Archduke Charles will inspect them; and they are to remain encamped for three months. One of these camps is preparing near Prague, the other near Pest; and though the plan for the third is not fixed, it is supposed to be on the frontiers of Bavaria."

It is reported, that a commercial treaty has been concluded between the French and Portuguese governments.

"Sir Sidney Smith has given up the command in consequence of bad health.—The present commander is Lord William Stuart, of the Crescent. The heavy ships are continually at anchor at the distance of about seven or eight miles N. N. E. from Ostend, while the smaller vessels cruise about to watch the motions of the enemy. There appears to be a very great number of vessels in Ostend harbour, but lately they have made no movement. On Sunday night eleven brigs got into Boulogne, from the eastward. A number of the enemy's small craft are expected from Flushing the first easterly wind, under convoy of a heavy frigate.

June 13.

"We are in great hopes that the Flushing and Ostend Plotillas will now venture out, as they are all ready. There are a great many vessels at Ostend, but few of them of any force."

PARIS, June 7.

Copy of a letter from General Moreau to the Grand Judge, Minister of Justice, enclosing his letter to the First Consul.

"CITIZEN MINISTER,

"I send you herewith annexed, a letter for the First Consul. I beg you, when you transmit it to him, to engage him to read it with the greatest attention. I make no doubt but he will appreciate the situation in which I am placed, and hasten to pronounce on my fate.

"I beg you Citizen Minister, to accept the assurance of the most distinguished consideration, with which I am,

(Signed)

"The General,

MOREAU."

The Grand Judge's Reply.

"This evening at 4 o'clock, Citizen General Moreau, I laid your letter of this day before the First Consul. His heart was affected in a lively manner by the rigorous measures which the safety of the state have prescribed him.

"At your first interrogatory, when the conspiracy, & your being implicated therein, were not yet denounced to the first Authorities and to all France, he had charged me, if you had shewn a wish to that effect to bring you before him that very moment, you might have contributed to draw the state out of the danger in which it still continued.

"Before I let justice take its course, I would by a second interrogatory, assure myself if there were no possibility to separate your name from this odious affair. You have not given me any opportunity to do so.

"Now that the juridical proceedings are begun, the law requires, that no paper, whether for or against you, should be withdrawn from the Judges, and the government has ordered me to annex your letter to the proceedings.

(Signed)

"REGNIER."

London, June 14.

Mr. Drake is to embark at a Danish port for England. The Elector of Saxony would not permit him to remain in his territory, alledging, according to the Paris papers, "that his principles did not permit him to harbor a man ordered to quit Munich, for having dishonored the first and most sacred of characters."

We yesterday saw a letter from an officer of high rank on the Kentish coast, in which it is stated, that from some information received within these few days, from the opposite coast, it is considered exceedingly probable that the enemy will shortly attempt to carry their threats against this country into execution. Upon this subject we have only to repeat a former observation, that come when they may, they will find us amply prepared to give them the reception they merit.

The Russian Gentleman who arrived in town on Saturday, and whose arrival is affected to be doubted by some of our contemporaries, dined with Sir Joseph Banks on Tuesday, accompanied by the Russian officer, who arrived about a fortnight ago.

The French Tribunal met on the 2d and after some business of mere form had been expedited, adjourned sine die. It is to be observed, that the term Monsieur, instead of Citizen, was applied, in speaking of the different Members.

The case of Robert Astlet has not yet been reported to His Majesty; and fifteen other prisoners are in the same situation. The whole of the eighteen, whose cases were reported by the recorder on Wednesday, have been respited during his Majesty's pleasure.

An agreement is entered into between the Courts of St. James and Copenhagen, by which the letters from England to Norway, and from Norway to England, are in future to be dispatched by way of Gothenburgh, instead of Husum as was formerly the case.

Yesterday evening, at 6 o'clock, their majesties in a post chaise, followed by the Princes in two carriages and four, took an airing by Hamstead and Highgate.

Mr. Livingston, the American Missionary mentioned lately so often in the public prints, took leave of London about five o'clock on Friday morning, not on Saturday, as generally reported. Those who believe that he did not receive a hint from some person connected with our government that his speedy absence would be acceptable, Livingston short visits will entertain. Mr. Livingston's purpose is to complete his mission to the American people, of his mission of a deplorable coronation to learn the French Government is nearly being destroyed by civil war, their authority and power. With regard to the medium may not be observed in their of more would have. The Duke of Wellington no longer contains from changes and to be in agreement other project be erected in to Louis XV. of London a-morning, not ported. Those receive a hint, our govern-ce would be acceptable, need only to recollect that Mr. Livingston had made arrangements for short visits to Norfolk &c. &c. when they will entertain sentiments of a very different nature.

Mr. Livingston came hither for the proposed purpose of a final settlement of the Loan to the United States, to enable them to complete the purchase of the Cession to Louisiana on the part of Bonaparte, to the Americans. The secret object, however, of his mission, was to attempt the raising of a loan for Bonaparte, to aid him in defraying the vast sums requisite for his Coronation, &c. &c. It may be curious to learn that notwithstanding the vague dissimulation and peculiar boasting of the French Government, the National Treasury is nearly empty, incredible sums having been drained from it for the purpose of bribing and cajoling all the Great Officers, both civil and military, who have exerted their authority for the elevation of Bonaparte and his family.

With regard to the pacific disposition indicated by the French Government through the medium of Mr. Livingston, it may or may not be true; but we have no hesitation in observing, that if the former were sincere in their professions, some other mode, of more direct and unequivocal nature, would have been adopted.

(Star.)

The Dutch papers which arrived yesterday, bring no very important intelligence, but they contain some curious speculations upon several changes and partitions of territory which are said to be in agitation on the continent; among other projects, it is said that Poland is again to be erected into a kingdom, which is to be given to Louis XVIII. and that Austria is to have ample indemnity in Germany for her portion of Poland. These we consider merely as the fine spun theories of German politicians. We have no doubt, however, but that in the present state of Europe, France would be more inclined to conciliate than to irritate the Cabinet of Vienna. The decided disposition manifested by Russia to oppose at length some barrier to the encroachment, and to give some check to the influence of France, and the increasing coolness between the latter and the Court of Berlin, render it obviously the policy of Bonaparte at present to temporize with the Court of Vienna. This kind of policy, which France has so cheerfully adopted since the revolution, we trust will not avail her now. The powers of the continent know, by sad experience, the disposition and the objects of the government of France, and, if they are not intimidated beyond all example, they will seize the opportunity which now presents itself (and it may be the last) of opposing effectual resistance to the avowed designs of France on a universal dominion. The present moment we think highly favorable to attempt the emancipation of Europe because we have reason to know from authority upon which we can place the firmest reliance, that the Emperor of Russia is sincerely disposed, if he meets with any effectual co-operation on the Continent, to take an immediate and decided part against France.

June 15.

Letters from St. Petersburg state, that the Emperor has made preparations for a journey to Berlin, that he may have a personal conference with the King of Prussia. The motives of this journey are obvious. He no doubt entertains the hope of engaging his Prussian Majesty to enter into his views with respect to the French; as he cannot hope to make the slightest impression on Bonaparte without the concurrence and co-operation of Prussia.

The reports respecting Ireland have turned out as we hoped. Some movements among the military, which were merely precautionary, appear to have given rise to them.

Two Hamburg mails have arrived since our last, and in the same packets several passengers of distinction, among whom were Mr. Drake, late Minister at Munich, and family, Sir Francis Drake, Countess of Beverly, &c. The public prints as well as private letters, mention military preparations in Russia, Prussia, Austria, and Denmark, and that a French cordon of 100,000 men is forming on the left Bank of the Rhine. These measures are, however, merely spoken of as pleasure camps, or defensive attitudes, but there are at the present moment so many differences to adjust among the great powers, and so much jealousy existing that it will not surprise those who have attended to the history of nations, should these movements, with other circumstances, lead to a state of warfare. In Russia, in Turkey, and even in Prussia, the French interest is upon the decline; while it gains ground in Spain, Portugal and Italy.

The King of Naples has been forced to dismiss his faithful minister D'Acton, and to appoint in his place Chevalier Micheroux, a person more agreeable to France. The tyrannical persecution by Bonaparte of British subjects upon the continent, is now extended to all British travellers in Italy, even in the neutral states of Tuscany, and the Papal dominions.

FRANKFORT, June 3.

The accession of Napoleon Bonaparte to the imperial crown of France, and it being made descendable to his family, have been officially notified to the different Germanic States by the French Ministers who were accredited to them. Exclusive of these particular communications, Mr. Bacher, the French Charge d'Affaires at the Diet of Ratisbon has made a general one to the Diet of the Germanic Empire, on the 28th of last month. All the notifications were made in the same form of words, to which were annexed copies of the decree of the French Senate of the 28th Floreal. The note addressed by Mr. Bacher to the Diet is as follows:

"The undersigned, the French Charge d'Affaires, has the honor to transmit to the General Diet of the Germanic Empire, the annexed copy of the Decree of the Senate, which determines henceforth the style, the forms, and the transmissal of the supreme power of France, the only things which, in the organization of the republic Government, did not bear a due proportion to the greatness and to the calls of the state.

"He hastens, in these circumstances, to notify, conformably to the orders of his Government, that his Imperial Majesty, Napoleon, Emperor of the French, is invested by the laws of the state, with the imperial dignity, and that this title and this dignity are to be transmitted to his descendants in the male line direct; and in default of such issue, to the male line direct of their imperial Highnesses Prince Joseph & Louis Bonaparte, brothers to the Emperor.

"In making this notification, the undersigned thinks it necessary to remark, that all official communications are to be suspended until the former titles shall be replaced by those of the Imperial Protocol, as well in the credentials of the Ministers accredited to France, as in those of his Imperial Majesty the Emperor of the French, accredited to Foreign Courts. The confidential communications necessary for the commencement and progress of business, may still be made in the usual manner.

"The undersigned is, in the mean time, instructed to declare, that the important law which has completed the organization of the state in a manner suitable to the dignity of the French people, will produce no change in its political relations. France, in placing them under the protection of a government invested with greater splendor and surrounded with a dignity more analogous to the nature of circumstances, confers greater force and consistency to the reciprocal advantages that friendly nations have a right to expect from her; and at the same time, she gives more consideration to the respect that all governments shall receive from her, and which they, in their turn, are bound to manifest towards her.

(Signed) "BACHER."

The diplomatic connections between England and the States of Bavaria and Wirtemberg, have been put an end to in consequence of the disagreeable occurrences which took place at the Courts of Munich and Stuttgart, produced by the conduct of the British Minister resident there. The English Ambassadors to those German Courts have been formally recalled. Of those two ministers, one, Mr. Spencer Smith, set out for Italy by way of Vienna, and the other is gone to the North of Germany. Mr. Drake arrived, the 16th of May, at Berlin from Dresden, and was set down at Mr. Jackson's from whence he has, most probably, continued his journey to his own country. His stay at Dresden was shortened, we understand, by some difficulties that the presence of his minister experienced on the part of the Government of the elector of Saxony.

GREENOCK, June 23.

Extract of a letter received in Greenock, dated on board the Argo, at Spithead, June 17.

"I have now the satisfaction to acquaint you of our arrival here, after a round trip of six months, last from Cadix, with a freight of five hundred thousand dollars, on account of merchants in London. You will no doubt be surprised to hear of Elfi Bey's fate, after all the expence and attention cast away upon him at home.

Having landed himself and suite on the 14th of February, at Rosetta, mouth of the Nile, to proceed up to Cairo, and in daily expectation of hearing of his arrival there, as also the receipt of the presents to be sent home, we were astonished to hear of his being pursued by some of the other Beys (and Albanian soldiers lately revolted from the Pacha of Alexandria) and very near losing his head, but effected his escape to a shrub encampment, by scattering some loose jewels that he had about his person among the soldiers, which took up the Barbarian's attention, long enough to serve his purpose. The last intelligence we heard of him, before we sailed from Alexandria was, that five or six Beys were in pursuit of him in the Desert, and little hopes being entertained of his being able long to conceal himself from their search. This circumstance is the less to be regretted, as he was very much in the French interest, which his people has declared upon oath, since made prisoners: whose lives have been spared, at the particular request of Major Miffet, our Consul at Cairo, by Osman Bey, the present Chief of the Mamelukes, a man very much in the British interest."

NEW-YORK, August 8.

Capt. Morehouse, of the brig Ontario, politely furnished us with the following extract from the log book of the ship Army, Snow, left at Basseterre.

Sunday, July 1. spoke a French privateer of 14 guns, which had captured the ship Hopewell, Sisson, and the Rockland. Atkins, in sight of us; they held the contest half an hour, when the privateer boarded the Hopewell, killed the supercargo and five seamen, and wounded the boatswain; then attacked the brig till she struck her colours, captain Atkins being dangerously wounded in the body and three of the seamen killed. The privateer lost 10 men and a great number wounded; she immediately made sail with her prizes for Guadaloupe.

August 10.

By the ship George, in 45 days from Greenock, we have received Glasgow papers to the 23d of June; which although containing London News five days later than our former advices, furnish only the following articles:

London, June 18.

A French squadron is said to be at the Brazils, supposed to consist of those vessels which shipped out of Rochefort.

June 20. Another Russian officer arrived in town on Monday. He came through France and Holland, and met Mr. Livingston on Friday last at Rotterdam, on his return to Paris. The vessel in which he came brought some private letters, one of which contains the following extracts from a communication received by a gentleman at Antwerp from his brother at Boulogne, who is employed in the Armament destined for the invasion of this country:

"All the horses, forage, and heavy artillery are embarked; we wait only the arrival of the Generals. I shall not, therefore, write to you again from hence, and probably I may never behold you more." We see no reason to doubt the facts here stated, nor are they in any respect calculated to excite alarm in our minds. The day on which the enemy ventures to approach our shores will, we are confident, prove a day of glory to Great Britain. Star.

Glasgow, June 13.

Mr. Pitt's Defence Bill was on Tuesday read a third time and passed without a division.

A letter from Greenock dated the 13th of June, received by the George, says, "An expedition is fitting out for Hanover, to consist of seventy thousand men."

Alexandria Daily Advertiser.

TUESDAY, August 14.

The latest intelligence from Britain, by arrivals at New York and other ports, informs that the prospect of invasion assumes a more serious aspect. One account states that the horses, forage and heavy artillery of the enemy are embarked. The prospect however, by no means intimidates the British. They count upon it, that the day on which the French venture to approach her shores, will be to Britain a day of glory. In the House of Commons, Mr. Pitt's Defence Bill, notwithstanding the powerful opposition which has appeared against him, has been carried. A letter, said to have been addressed to Pitt by Lord Grenville, in which his Lordship assigns his reasons for not joining the new administration, appears in a London paper. Speaking of himself and his political friends, he says, "No consideration of public ease or comfort; no apprehension of responsibility, nor reluctance to meet the real situation into which the country has been brought, have any weight in this decision; nor are we fettered by any engagements on the subject, either expressed or implied; we rest our determination solely on our strong sense of the impropriety of our becoming part to a system of government, which is to be formed at such a moment as the present on a principle of exclusion." His Majesty's health is by no means in a confirmed state. On this subject the London editors very prudently observe the greatest caution.

A naval officer (Lord Ranelagh) of a noble family has been sentenced to death for having struck his superior in a fray. He has been so strongly recommended to mercy, however, that expectations of his pardon are entertained.

Accounts from Paris to June 14, say, that the Emperor Napoleon and his brothers voted in the Council of State for pardoning all the lately convicted "conspirators," but that a majority of the members were for their execution; and that Bonaparte left the Council with tears in his eyes, at the ill success of his merciful efforts! The Emperor of the French was preparing to visit his ports on the coast. A conspiracy is stated to have been lately discovered and frustrated, which had for its object the murder of Louis XVIII.

A letter dated June 27, to a gentleman in Philadelphia, says:

"Europe at this moment appears to be in a deplorable situation. A certain powerful man may thank this country for his exaltation on the theatre of the world. Mr. Pitt made him First Consul. Mr. Addington has made him an Emperor; and if we do not relinquish our political system it is probable the new Emperor and the King of Prussia will divide the German Empire.

"Stir if they dare—I see nothing to hinder the division. Nothing but the establishment of Peace, and that with an endeavour on all sides to make it a permanent Peace, can give repose to suffering Europe."

Bonaparte's Civil List is to be augmented to 25 millions of livres. Each of the French Princes is to have three millions, and each of the six inferior officers of state one million yearly. The Admiral who succeeds in making a landing in England, will be made Grand Admiral.

This Lottery has been authorized by the Legislature of Virginia, for the laudable purpose of erecting a seminary of learning in or near the metropolis of this State. With this view it is contemplated to raise 20,000 dollars, and 2,500 dollars in addition, for defraying the expenses attendant on drawing the lottery. Citizens of the first respectability have been selected as trustees, and they have pledged themselves to use their utmost exertions to carry it into effect. The scheme has the advantage of giving to each each adventurer a chance for some very large prizes, whilst the proportion of prizes to blanks, is so great as to invite the friends of the intended institution to partake in the lottery, with very little risk of their becoming losers. The treasurer of this State is to be appointed to receive the money for the tickets as they are sold, and to pay the amount of the prizes to fortunate adventurers. It is believed that the above considerations will induce a rapid sale of the tickets, and the drawing will commence as soon as a sufficient number shall be sold to authorize it—which it is believed will be on the second Monday in December next.

TRAVELS IN GREECE.

PROPOSALS,

FOR PUBLISHING BY SUBSCRIPTION, THE TRAVELS OF

Anacharsis the Younger,
IN GREECE:

During the middle of the fourth Century, before the Christian Era,

With copious Notes and References.

BY

THE ABBE BARTHELEMY,

Keeper of the Medals in the Cabinet of the King of France, and Member of the Royal Academy of Inscriptions and Belles Lettres.

Translated from the French.

First American, from the fourth London edition.

IN FOUR VOLUMES.

THE work now offered to the American reader exhibits a complete view of the antiquities, manners, customs, religious ceremonies, laws, arts, and literature of ancient Greece, at the period of its greatest splendour. A knowledge of these has hitherto been only attainable by a laborious perusal of writers who have been little solicitous to join entertainment with instruction. The Travels of Anacharsis, on the contrary, are so written, that the reader may frequently be induced to imagine he is perusing a work of mere amusement, invention, and fancy; till his eye glances to the bottom of the page, when he perceives there is scarcely a sentence, and not a single fact or circumstance, but is supported by the authority of some ancient author. The amazing number of these quotations may, perhaps at first sight, seem to have been unnecessary, and to have more the appearance of a parade of erudition, than to be of any real utility; but it is to be remembered that, at the same time that they must be highly acceptable to the man of real learning, by enabling him to refer immediately to the original author, they are extremely useful, nay, we may say, absolutely necessary, even to such readers as can never be supposed to have any intention to consult the authorities quoted; as they clearly shew that such an idea, or such a circumstance, is not merely a deduction, or the offspring of the fancy of the author, but immediately taken from some ancient writer, and therefore perfectly accordant to the general scope and plan of the work.

TERMS.

I. The first Edition in America of Anacharsis's Travels, will be comprised in four Vols octavo.
II. It shall be printed on handsome wove paper and a new type casting for the purpose. Each Volume will contain about 400 pages.
III. The price to Subscribers, per Vol. bound and lettered, will be 2 dollars; in boards, 1 dollar and 75 cents, to be paid on the delivery of each Volume.

The European Edition sells at 12 d lists per sett.

IV. There shall be a handsome Map of Greece given with the first Volume, to be executed by one of the best Engravers.

V. Those who obtain ten Subscribers and become responsible for the payment of the same, shall receive one copy gratis. The work is now at Press, and shall be finished with all possible dispatch.

Subscriptions to the above work received at Robert & John Gray's book Store, Alexandria.

NOTICE.

THE subscriber being empowered to receive all the Rents due, or coming due in the town of Alexandria to Mr. Alexander Seymour Hoot, hereby gives notice to those concerned, that he will call on them for payment of their respective arrears, and that no other person is authorized to receive of them.
